

Christmas Market - London

Southbank Centre presents:
Christmas Market at London's South Bank next to London Eye

There will be a traditional Christmas Market taking place for the third time between the Southbank Centre/Royal Festival Hall and London Eye along the River Thames.

Meet with family, friends or colleagues at Southbank this Christmas and enjoy a beautiful Christmas Market at this unique location.

Whilst wandering about, look for and find unusual Christmas presents such as amber & silver jewellery, hand crafted toys, fragile glass ornaments for your Christmas tree, hand tatted laces, tin toys, candles in all shapes and sizes, hand-made ceramics or creative metal design. “Bought by you for special people at a special place”

The Christmas Market will take place from the 19th November 2010 until the 23rd December 2010.

Opening times:

Sunday to Thursday
11.00am - 8.00pm

Fridays / Saturdays
10.00am - 10.00pm

It will be a German style Christmas Market with app. 50 wooden chalets situated between Southbank Centre and London Eye.

The carousel in the centre of the Christmas Market offers younger visitors an enjoyable attraction especially for them. Parents can relax with a glass of “Glühwein” (German Mulled Wine) while listening to traditional Christmas music and watching their little ones enjoying a ride on the merry-go-round.

Other seasonal culinary specialties such as the typical German Sausage “Bratwurst” do not need an introduction, gingerbread hearts for your loved ones, roasted almonds and candies to taste the “sweet side of life“ or a delicious crepe.
